OPERATORS HEAR VIEWPOINT OF PUBLIC ON COAL

Second Day of Session Proves Interesting One

FOUR ADDRESSES

Retail Dealer, Advertising Man, News Agency Head and Journalist Speakers Today

CINCINNATI, May 15.—With four addresses by men from without the industry, bituminous coal operators, in the second day's session of the Annual Meeting of the National Coal Association, received the viewpoint of the public with relation to their industry.

Samuel B. Crowell, Philadelphia, Pa., President of the National Retail Coal Merchants' Association, brought the views of both the retailer and the ultimate consumer. John Lee Mahin of New York City, President of the Federal Advertising Agency, advised of the development of other lines of business and of trade by the use of improved methods of merchandising, including wise publicity and a careful study of the needs of the particular territory. Melville E. Stone of New York City, founder of the Associated Press, told how news is handled and of the activities of that great news agency, as well as placing before the coal men the attitude of the press. George H. Cushing, of Washington, editor and publicist, on "Where Do We Go From Here," stressed the interdependent relationship not only between individuals but between industries and then between the fabric of industry and of business and the public and the government.

Wants Industry Understood

Mr. Crowell recommended a co-ordination of effort by associations of retailers, wholesalers and producers, in order to place before those interested, including the buying public, such accurate information as would remove all misunderstanding regarding this industry. He advocated a reduction in the number of sizes of coal, a more fixed relationship in distribution and pointed out that the introduction of the zoning system during the war disrupted ordinary distribution. The revival of this system in 1919, he said, again brought uncertainty to the consumer as to whether he could get the particular kind of coal he desired; and in 1920 and 1922 service orders by the Interstate Commerce Commission again interfered with existing relationships.

"Modern merchandising views all business from the standpoint of the final consumer, who is the real consumer," said John Lee Mahin. "You operators may think when you sell a car of coal to a railroad or to a baby carriage manufacturer, your consumer is the concern whose check you receive. Your real consumer is the person who uses up the energy stored in your coal by riding on the railroad or the baby who wears out the baby carriage made by the manufacturer who used your coal to operate his factory. Modern merchandising is more concerned with what what finally becomes of merchandise than what it costs to make or distribute it. When you ascertain what finally becomes of your coal and how much it has cost the person who uses it up, you will realize how little effect the price you get for a ton of coal has to do with its ultimate consumption." He urged standardization of quality, continuity of effort, and pointed out a number of examples of the success of American business enterprises when presented to the buying public along those lines.

Tar for Road Building

George H. Cushing called attention to the demand for tar in road building. Coal produces tar. The operators may, by producing tar at a reasonable price, help the country get the highest types of roads. "This reference to coal tar," said Mr. Cushing, "was given only to call attention to the industrial expansion that is ahead of us when the various by-products of coal are segregated and made available. That will provide an entirely new chemical industry in this country which will enhance its industrial and trade activities in many lines." He said also that the country is turning toward long-distance transmission of electric power. This power is developed by coal. He told the operators that they had the same opportunity as anybody to get into this business and therefore might help the country, again, to have the lowest cost power on earth.

LIMIT BISHOPS' TENURE

Methodist Leaders Can't Live In Same Place But 8 Years

By Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 15.—The Methodist Episcopal general conference today limited the bishops' tenure in any one residence area in this country to eight years. It formerly was indefinite. The change is regarded as radical.

LIFE ETERNAL IS SERMON SUBJECT

Evangelist Graphically Portrays Story of Dives and Lazarus, Draws Lesson

"It was not riches that barred Dives from life eternal nor poverty that opened the gates of heaven to Lazarus. The unrighteousness of Dives damned him and the righteousness of Lazarus saved him," declared the Rev. M. T. Chandler in his sermon at the M. E. Church South evangelistic meeting last night.

First he reviewed his Tuesday night sermon relating to the story of the rich man and Lazarus, after reading the text without the book. He then more fully explained the biblical example of everlasting punishment and eternal life.

He portrayed graphically the condition of Dives which was one of earthly affluence and pleasure and that of Lazarus, the poor beggar who had only dogs for his companions. He next told in a forceful manner, of how the situations were reversed in that the rich man had to suffer eternally for his sins and Lazarus was rewarded for his righteousness.

The meetings are being well attended. The Grayson Trio who furnish special music at each service and lead the general singing are adding to the success of the meeting in no small degree.

FOUR COUNTIES TO JOIN IN FOX HUNT

Chase Tomorrow Near Glasgow To Be Biggest Ever Held in Cumberlands

GLASGOW, May 15.—From present indications the big fox hunt to be staged on Peach Orchard Ridge, nine miles from Tompkinsville, in the Cumberland River hills to-morrow will be the biggest event ever to take place in that section.

Fox chasing is becoming an annual event in this section. The first one of the kind was held last year, and this will be the second. Fox hunters from Allen, Barren, Cumberland and Monroe counties will take part in the race. Hunters from several bordering counties of Tennessee will also take part.

Several hundred people will assemble on the ridge to-morrow afternoon and they will start shortly after sundown.

Following the race the Modern Woodmen will give a fox race at their annual celebration at Akersville in that same county, May 30. It was learned yesterday that more than a hundred dogs have already been entered in this race. The celebration will last two days and is given by the Akersville camp of Modern Woodmen.

Judge's Sentence To "Jake" Drinker One of Few Given

A three hundred dollar fine and sixty days in jail was the punishment meted out to Tom Mullins, of Pineville, in police court yesterday for having in his possession about a quart of Jamaica ginger. The verdict is unusual as vendors of "Jake" and those drinking it and having it in possession are usually able to escape punishment.

Mr. Colson, defendant's attorney, sought to have the case dismissed on the grounds that the Volstead Act and state statutes do not include extracts among prohibited beverages. I. G. Leabow, acting city prosecuting attorney, claimed that "Jake" is adequately covered in the phrase, "and other intoxicants," used in the statute. The case was allowed to go to the jury who quickly returned a verdict.

KIWANIANS TO TAKE PART IN FREE ROAD DAY

Number Will Work on Detour Road Monday

VERRAN CHAIRMAN

Brummett and Reeves Speakers, Grayson Trio Sings—Plans For Under Plivileged Child Outlined

A number of members of the Kiwanis Club at the luncheon today volunteered to go to Barbourville next Monday to take part in the big Free Road Day at which time a mile of the detour road is expected to be built. They will leave early Monday morning, with all other Middlesboro men who are interested in the proposition, President Blackburn announced, enjoy the community dinner at noon and return that night. Dr. T. T. Gibson, C. O. Brown, Dr. E. L. Camp and H. H. Overton are the committee in charge of plans.

The club also voted to send a delegation to Savannah to the Dixie Highway meeting to try to influence the re-routing of that highway through this section.

H. E. Verran was chairman of the day and in charge of the splendid program. First, the Grayson Trio from the M. E. Church, South, three accomplished young women, sang two beautiful numbers.

Dr. U. G. Brummett, chairman of the Kiwanis Club under-priviliged child committee, gave a very interesting talk on the work planned for the children of Middlesboro. In the first place, he said, the committee had decided that every crippled child in Middlesboro should be given the chance to walk if it were at all possible and that every boy who had to stay out of school to help support his mother should be given a change to stay in school. Then, he said, plans would be made to take care during the summer vacation of Middlesboro children, all of whom, he said, were under-privileged in the matter of play facilities. This will probably be done, he pointed out, through public playgrounds under capable supervisiors. By teaching the children to play fair and square, they will, when grown up, do the same thing, de declared. The under-privileged child, he maintained, knows the value of time and money, is not easily offended and swerved from his course, and for this reason he will make the next generation's best citizens.

Rev. A. B. Reeves, speaking of the Kiwanis Club's relations to the church, made an empassioned appeal to the club to back up the church, the birthplace and home of faith. "Don't take for granted, when you are building new things," the pastor urged, "that the old things don't need repairing. The church is ignored more in the thinking of men today than ever before." Pursuing this thought, he declared people of today sought one of three things: Business dominated by mammon; education, dominated by scepticism and cynicism; or pleasure, dominated by lust. He attacked the newspapers for their playing up of sensationalism and "what the people want to read" to the neglect of church and religious news. "Let us restore the altar of God," he exhorted in closing, "until such an estimate is placed upon it that all the people of the future will revere and respect it."

Gasoline Raised To 28 Cents Gallon

Gasoline has received another boost here and is now sold at twenty-eight cents retail at a number of filling stations which collect the one cent voluntary road tax. An advance in the wholesale price is responsible for the increase.

Local consumers are advised that the price will, in all probability, be around thirty cents June 17 when the extra two cent road tax on each gallon sold at retail becomes effective.

FREE ZIHLMAN CHICAZGO GRAND JURY CHARGES

Committee Does Not Find Evidence Sufficient

LANGLEY REPORT

As Kentuckian Will Not Participate in House Pending ction on Appeal, No Action to be Taken

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The House committee investigating charges before the Chicago grand jury that Representative Zihlman of Maryland accepted a bribe reported today that "taken as a whole, in the committee's opinion, the evidence does not establish the truth of the charge."

Coincident with the submission of this report to the House, Representative Langley, who was also mentioned in the Chicago inquiry and who was convicted several days ago of violating the prohibition law, notified Speaker Gillett that, pending final action on his appeal, he would not attend the House sessions or participate in proceedings of the House Public Buildings Committee of which he is chairman. The committee, the report, said such an arrangement was satisfactory and suggested that no further action be taken in regard to Langley until his case was disposed of by the courts. The committee report was unanimous.

NEW BUILDINGS FOR LUMBER CO,

Bell County Plant Erecting Home on "Y"— to Move From Fitzpatrick

Construction of buildings for the new plant of the Bell County Lumber and Coal company is in progress on the north side of the railway tracks near the "Y." This site will be the new home of the firm.

Four buildings will be erected on the acreage acquired by the company for its permanent plant, enough to house and keep under cover all their lumber. One of the buildings will be used as a shop where mill work of all kinds will be done, it being the plan to greatly increase the service in this line by the installation of additional machinery. "We consider the new location much better than the old for our plant," declared F. R. Whalin, "and we intend to make of it an ideal lumber and builders' supply plant." He stated that he hoped to move to the new location in about five weeks.

The company has been at its present location on Fitzpatrick avenue for five years.

Official Day To Don Straw Hats Sees Few in Sight

Middlesboro Beau Brummels did not "step out" in new straw hats today which marks the advent of the straw hat season. Cool weather and slight indications of rain is perhaps partly responsible for the failure to observe the annual custom.

Local haberdashers report that a few summer hats have been sold though today's business was little larger in this line than that of previous and warmer days. A variety of new styles in men's summer headgear are offered this spring. These include fancy shades and mixed black and white sport models not heretofore seen on the markets.

Middlesboro men, being conservative in the matter of spring hats, are a little chary of these new fangled styles, however, and after a brief inspection of the novel models usually decide on the plain white or ecru straw lia or the reliable Panama.

FRIENDSHIP TRIP OF AMERICAN BOYS TO EUROPE

International Amity by Youthful Contact Sought

TOUR OF 10 WEEKS

Summer's Excursion to Include British Isles and European Countries—to Asia Next Year

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Embarking June 21 on a "friendship trip" through Europe, 20 American boys will constitute the first group of this kind to advance international amity in accordance with a resolution adopted by the League of Nations Assembly. The tour, which will occupy ten weeks, will be under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Associations of North America.

The boys, ranging in age from 16 to 19 years, are selected on the basis of outstanding leadership qualities. The choice, for the most part, has been in the hands of state and local Y. M. C. As and Hi-Y Clubs, although other groups, including the Grand Council of the Order of DeMolay, Hill School of Pottstown, Pa., and the Brick Presbyterian Church of New York, are sending representatives. The DeMolay Council is choosing its delegate, whose name will be announced early in June, from a group of fifty boys from various chapters whose records show special achievement and a promise of unusual leadership. His expenses will be paid by the order. In nearly all other cases the trip will be financed by the boys' families. Special arrangements have materially reduced the usual cost of such a tour.

The tour has been arranged as a result of plans made at last year's World Conference of Workers Among Boys, as Portschach, Austria. It is part of an effort to help establish better understanding and more friendly relations among nations, as well as being a new feature in the educational work of the association.

The itinerary includes, besides the Norwegian cruise, trips to England, France, Belgium, Holland, Sweden and Denmark. Outstanding features will be visits to Oxford, Stratford-on-Avon and the British Empire Exhibition in England, the Olympic Games in France, and the International Boy Scout Jamboree which is to be held in Copenhagen from August 15 to 20.

Future similar tours are planned if this summer's experience is successful. At present it is expected that there will be two optional tours offered for 1925, one taking in northern Europe, and the other the principal countries of southern Europe.

Other plans under consideration call for an educational "friendship trip" of older boys to Japan and the Far East, tours in the United States for European boys, and a possible cruise around the world occupying an entire year.

APPALACHIAN LEAGUE OPENS

Game in Knoxville This Afternoon, Pioneers and Morristown Team

KNOXVILLE, May 15.—The opening game of the Appalachian league baseball season began at Caswell Park here at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon when the Knoxville Pioneers met the Morristown Roosters on the diamond.

The game was formally opened when City Manager Louis Brownlow hurled the first ball from the pitcher's box. Major Otey Walker, public safety director, donned the mit and caught the ball, while Judge "Bob" Williams attempted an emulation of Babe Ruth by a wicked swing at the horsehide.

Caswell Park has been put in excellent condition for the season. New wire has been strung in front of the grandstand ,the bleachers repaired and the diamond rolled. Skipper Moffett, who has been working on the Pioneer roster since last fall, believes that he has the best combination in the entire league.

SUNDAY BETTER ON REACHING CHICAGO

Evangelist Tells of Baseball Days and Conversion at Mission There

By Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 15.—"Billy" Sunday, world-famous evangelist, who played baseball and became converted to Christianity in Chicago, arrived here yesterday, accompanied by his wife and physician, in much better condition and spirits than he has been in for six days, Dr. R. L. Sanders said.

The athletic evangelist, on his way to the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., for treatment of a kidney ailment, showed his accustomed fire.

"I came here in '83 with $1 in my pocket and my right hand clenched to defend it from the hold-up men I had heard infested Chicago," he said. "At 7 a. m. I went to Spalding's store and was disappointed to find it closed. Then with my hair long and wearing a $7 suit I went over to the baseball park on the Lake front and joined nine men that could lick any other nine that ever crawled into uniforms."

Sunday's conversion in Chicago at the old Pacific Garden mission, which moved a few years ago to other quarters out of the busier downtown district, was brought suddenly to mind when flowers from the mission were placed in his arms.

"We feel as though we belong here," he said. "I met the Lord here thirty-six years ago."

It was on a Sunday that "Billy," idle because baseball then was not played on Sunday, sat on the curbstone across from the mission and heard the exhortations to sinners. He walked inside and announced his conversion.

Dry Officer Says This Hard Place To Buy Liquor.

Dry officers have their ups and downs in their hazardous career, not the least of which is arrest by other officers to whom their identity is not known. A night policeman thus took in custody a state prohibition officer a few nights ago who had a quantity of liquor and "Jake" in his possession.

The dry sleuth tried by various ways to escape arrest and, as a last resort, divulged the information that he was a prohibition agent collecting evidence in Middlesboro as he does towns all over the state. He had in his possession credentials from Sam Collins, chief state prohibition officer, which left no doubt as to his identity.

"I have been in nearly every Kentucky town buying whiskey to obtain evidence but you are the only officer who has ever arrested me," he told the policeman. He stated that there was whiskey in Middlesboro but that it is extremely difficult to buy. He added, however, that "Jake" is plentiful and may be had for the asking.

Convention Closes Early Today After Stormy Session

ADOPT UNIT RULE

Underwood Forces, Strong in Ninth, Strenuously Protest, But Overruled by McAdoo Supporters

By Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, May 15.—The Kentucky delegation of twenty-six to the Democratic national convention was instructed for William G. McAdoo for the presidential nomination after his supporters forced the adoption of the unit rule by the state convention which adjourned here early today.

Following a session marked by considerable commotion, the unit rule was adopted after three roll calls and over the strenuous objection of supporters of Senator Underwood, who announced they would appeal to the national convention, since two delegates were instructed for Underwood in the Ninth District. It was held, however, that despite district instructions the state convention had the right to declare for unit rule.

McAdoo forces dominated the convention throughout.

ONE DEAD, BIG LOSS IN VIRGINIA FLOOD

Shenandoah, Rappahannock and Rivanna Valleys Suffer Heavy Damage

By Associated Press

RICHMOND, Va., May 14.—One death and widespread property and crop damage in Virginia has been reported as a result of the flooding of the Rappahannock, Shenandoah, Rivanna and other streams and rivers in the state of the steady rains of the last few days. Much movable property and livestock has been saved, however, due to th eadequate warnings.

William Lucas was drowned at Fredericksburg, where the Rappahannock had risen twenty-five feet last night and was still swelling. A large dam and a number of buildings had been washed away there, and the lowlands were indundated, but the heaviest damage appeared to have been suffered at Charlottsville, where the lighting and street car systems were paralyzed and property loss was estimated at $200,000. Harper's Ferry, W. Va., and Harrisonsburg, Va., also reported damage and were in darkness.

Seven bridges over the Rivanna were washed away by a twenty-five foot rise, and railroad and other spans were in danger from the rushing water of other streams, including the Shenandoah, which was thirty feet above normal at Riverton, with buildings and roads flooded.

TRADE OUTLOOK IS BRIGHT

How about business conditions? Sales figures have slowed down a bit lately in several of the basic industries. But there's nothing in the situation to make us uneasy. All indications are that the slow-down is temporary.

Business is a lot like a man hiking across the continent. He can walk fast just so long, then he has to stop and rest. That's the real business situation—production was on too big a scale, so now there's a lull to "size things up."

These lulls come periodically even during long-range periods of prosperity. Trade goes up and down. It always has, and it always will.

Take steel. This giant industry is operating at about 80 per cent of capacity, maybe 85. But in recent months production was smashing all records. Now the industry slows down to catch its breath.

Then, too, buyers are buying hand-to-mouth, holding back for lower prices. Makers are slowly making concessions—small price cuts to serve as bait. This also is a periodical and inevitable reaction. When prices stabilize, lots of orders.

Auto industry also is quieter. Buying movements by the public come in waves. The last big wave, during January and February and March, made the factories turn out more cars than ever before. A lull now, but only temporary. Place your bets on another big buying movement, to start soon.

A lot of the lessened activity in business generally is seasonal—always comes at this time of year. That's one reason why coal production is so low. Spring always brings a dull spell. Furthermore, there's a tremendous over-production of coal—and no national strikes in sight to create a shortage.

But business leaders are expecting good times. They're getting ready for it—providing the capital to carry on work. In April 298 million dollars worth of new stocks and bonds were floated, compared with 305 millions in April last year.

In the first three weeks of April (latest figures available), the railroads of the whole country loaded and moved 2,620,318 cars of revenue-producing freight. This was a bit less than in the corresponding weeks of last year, but away ahead of 1922 and 1921. From the first of the year to April 20, the roads moved 142 cars of freight for every 141 a year ago in the corresponding period, and 120 in 1922 and 111 in 1921.

This is the long-range tendency, not only in rail traffic but in general business. That's what really counts—the long-range activity, not temporary lulls.

THE OPEN FORUM

Community Chest

The following open forum letter received by the Daily News, is perhaps well taken, but we do not believe that Community Chest subscribers during the last year have been bothered by solicitations nor that they will be next year. Of course, tickets may be sold for school entertainments or like affairs, but that is entirely outside the province of the Community Chest and can not be considered as a civic charity. There have been some protests to the Red Cross roll call, but any one who thinks about it for a minute must know that a bona fide membership for the Red Cross must be obtained each year and that the roll call is the only way to get this. The open forum letter, then, we believe expresses very clearly a common protest of the person solicited, giving at the same time no specific complaint.

"Editor The Daily News:

"Before the next Community Chest Drive is launched, the subscribers would like to be assured of one point: That if each beneficiary is allotted the amount it requests, then no further calls will be made on the public by these said beneficiaries during the year. The chief reason people contribute liberally to the Chest, is that they expect to not be annoyed by solicitors with tickets or requests, either at their homes or places of business during the year.

"We all admit that each cause is a most worthy one; we expect to contribute our bit, willingly, during the drive. But if any beneficiary gives an entertainment to raise additional funds, we don't want to have a half dozen or more, soliciting us to purchase tickets. We will attend if we care to; let us know where tickets are for sale, but spare us the having to say "No" to those selling tickets, etc. Unless this assurance is giving, believe me, the contributions will not be as liberal as last year.

ELABORATE PLANS FOR KIWANIS MEET

International Convention to Be Held in Denver Next Month Full of Interest

Kiwanians going to Denver, Colo., to attend the Eighth Annual International Convention, June 16 to 19, are to witness a colorful, historical spectacle, the like of which has never been produced or seen on the American continent, according to information received by members of the local club.

A stupendous historical pageant—the "Spirit of the West"—portraying Spanish contests, early Indian traditions and the romance of pioneer days, will be staged in an especially built open-air theatre seating upwards of 15,000 spectators. More than 700 performers will participate, including 35 Indians off the Navajo reservations of New Mexico, dozens of cowpunchers from Texas, Oklahoma, Wyoming and Colorado, many of the earlier white settlers of the West and even miners who took part in the first quest for gold in the rush of '49.

According to Jerry Tobin, Chairman of the Entertainment Committee for the International Kiwanis gathering, the pageant will depict western civilization from the days of Indian massacres, followed by the Spanish attacks by Coronado; the slow years during which pioneersmen and scouts established trading posts along the Platte and Arkansas Rivers; when the overland schooners were dragged across the treacherous plains carrying hungry gold-seekers; during cowboy days when such things as fences were unknown and finally up and into the Twentieth Century.

A minature village is being provided, construction of which is already under way, for the staging of a large part of the "Spirit of the West." This village with its stockades, post office, Hell's half acre, saloons and gambling halls and trading posts, will serve as the background to the stage on which the pageant will unfold the strides of Time and Western Progress.

Before the final wind-up and spectacular fire works which will be played across the sky high over the heads of the spectators, showing the crest of the American and Canadian flags and bearing the great Kiwanis seal, will be the complete destruction by fire of the typical Western village at the hands of the Indians, followed by forty-five minutes of cowboy wild west, featuring broncho busting, trick riding, stage coach hold-ups and fancy trick roping.

There are scores of other things too numerous to mention, that will make the 1924 convention one of the greatest continental events ever staged in America.

Not What One Would Call a Perfect Fit

TRI-STATE PHONE CO. IS EXPANDING

All Plans For Merger Have Been Abandoned Manager Says

Plans for connection with Knoxville and LaFollette and other improvements are being made by the Tri-State Telephone company, according to C. A. Chandler, of London, president of the firm.

Mr. Chandler, Fred Mayes, local manager and Henry Hyde, Pineville manager ,went to LaFollette recently and conferred with the manager there and also with the manager of the People's Telephone company of Knoxville for connections with Tri-State telephones in this section. A new line will be built from Middlesboro to LaFollette via Cumberland Gap and Arthur. Work on this will begin June 5 and be rushed to completion. Some of the poles are already on the ground.

The line which formerly extended over into Tennessee was discontinued on account of changes being made in the road which necessitated the removal of poles. When the line is rebuilt, however, the company expects to give better service there than formerly.

The Harlan line will also be rebuilt, two extra circuits being planned for that line. The Barbourville line is under construction now, this branch being recabled.

Though Mr. Chandler did not expressly say so, it is understood that any plans which may have been considered for a merger with the other telephone company has been abandoned. This may be inferred from the fact that expensive improvements are being planned.

Mr. Mayes says that the Tri-State business is increasing here and that the completion of the improvements making possible better outside should warrant further growth of the company. The equipment of the local office and the appliances used are as modern as are found in the larger cities.

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton

"You must carry me around all the rest of your life."

"Where would you like to go today?" asked Mister Muggs.

"Does Sinbad the Sailor live in Once-Upon-a-Time Land?" asked Nick.

"Yes, indeed, he certainly does," answered Mister Muggs. "He has by far the grandest palace in the whole place."

The Twins got into the magic automobile ,and it rattled away past seven seas and seven lighthouses, and came at last to a country so gorgeous that they were almost blinded with its beauty. The roads were paved with amber, the fences were made of onyx, the very pebbles were moonstones and the houses were made of gold.

The palace itself was built of a hundred kinds of gems which flashed and sparkled in the sunlight.

Sinbad the Sailor, now a rich prince, sent word for them to come in at once when they arrived.

So the three visitors sat down on a pile of silk cushions and tried to feel as much at home as they could.

"I'm so glad you came," said Sinbad hospitably. "I was just wondering to whom I was going to tell my adventures today. I've told my story to so many people there is hardly any one left who hasn't heard it. What would you like to hear about? The time the giant bird threw a rock on my ship and wrecked it, or the time I was left in the Valley of Serpents (each of them big enough to eat an elephant), or the time I got lost in the diamond valley and tied myself to an eagle, or the time I nearly starved on a desert island, or the time I—"

Mister Muggs looked at his watch.

"If we listen to all your adventures, oh, most gracious prince, we wouldn't be home until time for the movies on Saturday night, much as we should enjoy staying."

"Well, then," laughed Sinbad, who was as good natured as he was rich, "I'll tell you about the Little Old Man of the Sea."

"Oh, yes, we'd love to hear that," cried the Twins, pulling their cushions up nearer.

"Well," said Sinbad, "I was lost on a dessert island on one of my travels, when, suddenly across a little stream I saw some trees hanging to cross when a little old man appeared and begged me to carry him over.

"I picked him up and he sat on my shoulders, crossing his legs under my chin as though to choke me.

"Now," said he, "you must carry me around all the rest of your life."

"Oh, no, I'll not," said I, "nothing of the sort. I'm not in the taxicab business.

"But do you know the more I struggled the tighter he held, and I couldn't shake him off.

"Some sailors happened to land on the island for drinking water, and the Old Man ran off, or I suppose I should be carrying him yet. They brought me safely home. The orchard belonged to a wizard and he kept the Little Old Man there to protect his fruit."

"If you come back again I'll tell you another story."

"Thank you," said Nancy and Nick, "We'd like to come back tomorrow."

Remember That Close Call

DEAR SIR:

Do you remember the last time you almost his someone with your auto? It has happened to you—it happens to everyone, who drives a car.

Have you stopped to analyze since that time what it would have meant to you if it had not been almost—if you had actually injured or killed someone instead of just missing?

There would be doctor's bills and hospital expenses—Compensation for loss of time—Compensation to dependants, if any, loss of services, and if your victim is totally or partially disabled or killed, the prospect of a large claim and its collection by the injured party are almost certainties.

In the event of court action you will have to employ counsel of a high calibre to defend you. This is costly.

An automobile liability insurance policy is an investment, not an expense. It pays all claims (up to the limits insured for), and in addition should you be called upon to defend a court action, provides expert counsel to take care of your interests, without any expense to you other than the regular annual premium for the policy.

Is the risk of losing all your worldly posessions worth the few dollars a year you apparently save by not being insured?

Full particulars and rates will be cheerfully given without obligating you in any way.

Very truly yours,

J. L. Manring & Co.

GOVERNORS INVITED TO FREE ROAD DAY

Executives and Society Women to Join in Work Next Monday and Tuesday

WINCHESTER, May 14.—With the objective of constructing two miles of road in two "free days" on the highway from Cincinnati to Cumberland Gap, some 1,500 persons are expected to assemble next Monday, May 19, and work on the stretch of road from Barboursville to Corbin, in Laurel and Knox counties. The governors of Kentucky, Illinois, Tennessee North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida have been invited together with representatives of 247 banks, 152 hotels and all civic clubs representing cities on the route from Cincinnati to St. Petersburg and Miami, Fla.

Charles O'Connor, general supervisor, was in Winchester Monday and related the plans for these days.

"All records in co-operative highway construction were broken at the 'free day' held recently on the road from Roundstone to Berea," Mr. O'Connor said, "but these days will exceed this record. Society women and governors will shovel rock with the mountaineers and regular road crew, and the objective of constructing a minimum of one mile of highway each day will undoubtedly be reached."

The second free day will be devoted to working on the road from Roundstone to Berea and it is planned to complete a mile of that road on May 20.

Since the Court of Appeals declared some fourteen road contracts invalid, numerous contractors, especially in the southeastern portion of the state, have issued statements declaring that the only chance to construct a road thru Kentucky in the next five years rests with the counties paying the cent gas tax and devoting the revenue to the construction of these highways. If the plans of Mr. O'Connor and his aids are realized a route thru Kentucky will be opened by fall and the tourist traffic can be accommodated, is the belief of the local men interested in the project.

Following the two free days on the highway, May 19 and 20, it is planned to have a "Winchester Week" featured by another free day and the regular crew will be in the employ of the city of Winchester during this week.

MUST CONSIDER STATE PARKS SOON

Geologist Says Natural Charm and Primal Wilderness Is Passing

By Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, May 12.—If Kentucky is ever to have a unit system of state parks, board recreational areas rich in the stately historic dignity, and natural charm of the primal wilderness, steps looking toward such an end must be taken soon, or industrial and commercial interests will step in and make such acquisitions impossible for all time.

This was the summary of Dr. Willard Rouse Jillson's address before the Kentucky Academy of Science of which he is president today.

The state geologist discuss the geology of some proposed Kentucky State parks.

"In the case of the Mammoth Cave and Cumberland Falls such permanent losses are a certainty unless these areas be acquired by the state within the next year or two," he said.

"With this idea in mind the Kentucky General Assembly this year passed a law, creating a Kentucky State Park Commission of three members whose duties, during the biennial period 1924-26, have been outlined to consist of an examination of available park sites in Kentucky, followed by selective recommendations to the legislature of 1925 concerning those which might be regarded as suitable. The recommendations specified in the act are to be accompanied by suggestions as to the best methods of securing for the state one or more of these tracts by popular subscription or gift of the land."

No state funds are appropriated for the purpose of purchase, he said; that deed in perpetuity is to be made to the state which is to be charged with their maintenance and control. This law which will take effect during the middle of June, this year, will afford for the first time a definite step looking towards the establishment of one or more Kentucky state parks, he added.

"Opinions will differ as to what kind of area should be selected for state park purposed," the president continued. "In general it may be indicated that no tract should be made a state park which does not present a high type of physical excellence, great natural beauty, or outstanding historic importance."

Regions which exhibit at one point or another the scarred and defaced artificialties of man should certainly never be admitted to serious consideration, the speaker said. One or more fish and game preserves should be considered in order to inaugurate a broader conservation policy, was his expressed view.

"Kentucky, blessed beyond her sister states in the central Mississippi Valley with natural wonders and beauties, and points of historic interest, has many areas which upon investigation will be found capable of meeting the most exacting specifications," he said.

Following close upon Mammoth Cave in Edmonson county in consideration of state park sites, he mentioned:

The Carter Caves of Carter County; the Cumberland Falls in Whitley and McCreary counties; Cumberland Gap in Bell county; Natural Bridge in Powell and Wolf county; The "Breaks of Sandy" in Pike county; "In Between the Rivers" in Lyon and Trigg crunties; the Ohio River Lowlands in Ballard county, or the Reelfoot Lake region in Foulton county; a portion of the Kentucky River Gorge in Central Kentucky, in parts of Jessamine, Garrard, Mercer or Woodford counties; and some one or two areas of special significance as regards the early history of Kentucky.

Among these he mentioned tracts at Harrodsburg or Boonesboro, the points of first settlement in Kentucky.

SCARS

By David Morton

The smell of ruin in the autumn air,
When rusty twilights come too early down,
Will take the hearts of strong men unaware,
And lure them from the friendly, lighted town—
To warrd old, lonely roadways where they learn
Again of summers that have come to husk,
Where smokey stars like low-hung lanterns burn
Above the crumbling borders of the dusk.

On littered ways where leaves are crisp and curled,
And mist comes in between the passing shapes,
There go the lone and desolate of the world,
Wrapped in their thoughtful silences like capes,
Walking dark roads beneath the autumn stars,
Each with his hidden and historic scars.

Worth racing for

Gee, Mister, if you've ever tasted the real Orange-Crush, you'd race your legs off just to get one!

Here are six reasons why it's so delicious: (1) The natural fruit oil of oranges—which gives that delicate and distinctive flavor; (2) The natural acid of citrus fruits (oranges, lemons and limes)—which gives the tang; (3) Orange juice; (4) Carbonated water—which gives "zip," sparkle, purity; (5) U. S. Certified food color—which makes it as appealing to the eye as to the taste; (6) Pure cane sugar.

That's all. My, what a drink!

ANDERSON RESIGNS AS RED CROSS HEAD

Road Expresses Appreciation of His Work—Endorse Community Chest

W. S. Anderson, chairman of the local Red Cross chapter for the past three years, tendered his resignation of this office at the specially called executive board meeting yesterday afternoon in the Red Cross rooms. Mr. Anderson is leaving Middlesboro in the near future and for that reason it was necessary for him to resign. The resignation was accepted with regret.

Mr. Anderson spoke briefly, in connection with his resignation, telling of the work which the chairmanship carried with it, both of pleasure and responsibility. He expressed the hope that a competent nurse would be secured in the near future to carry on the work here as it has been carried on.

The board expressed great regret at Mr. Anderson's leaving, bringing out the great service he had done the Red Cross here, working faithfully for this cause in every way possible. Appreciation of this work and of Mr. Anderson's far-reaching civic service was also expressed by board members.

Supt. J. W. Bradner, vice-chairman of the chapter, will be chairman until the election of a new chairman at a called meeting of the board next Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. L. L. Pumphrey of the M. E. Church, South, and Rev. W. B. Archer of the First M. E. Church were elected new members of the board to fill vacancies.

Discussion of selecting a new public health nurse took up a great deal of the time at the meeting yesterday. It was finally decided at the suggestion of Supt. Bradner, to leave the selection entirely up to Miss Margaret East, regional Red Cross director, who has often visited here and is acquainted with the field.

The executive board went on record as endorsing the Community Chest drive for May 27 and promised their unanimous support.

ICE CREAM MEN HEAR BUSINESS SITUATION TALK

Chicago Man Reviews Conditions Past Few Years

CAUTION IS NOTED

No Cause For Alarm is Seen by Speaker in Present Recession—Says Business on Sound Basis

Frequent reference to and reflection upon the fundamental facts and factors that influence business conditions are the most dependable ways to get an understanding of tendencies in commercial activities," said Dr. C. D. Hardy of Swift & Co., Chicago, speaking before the Cumberland Ice Cream Manufacturers at the meeting in Pineville last night.

J. H. Chesney, W. S. Douglass and E. C. Eckrosh of the Honeycup Ice Cream Company attended the meeting. This Association meets every month, and discusses its affairs generally but the meetings are open to the public, and quite a number of the business men of Pineville were present and enjoyed the splendid address of Dr. Hardy.

"The purchasing power of the great mass of wage earners still remains high. The steel industry, the building trades, the automobile manufacturing, the railroad business—all are busy. The wage scale remains high in these enterprises and there is but little unemployment.

"Caution in both buying and investments is evident. Business is not booming as a result. This is disappointing to those looking for long profits; but it may be, on the other hand, an indication of soundness in fundamental matters. Certainly this caution is evidence that inflation is not taking place, and without inflation, which is sure to be followed sooner or later by depression, there cannot be large losses.

"Where business now is can best be understood by a little reflection upon the present conditions in comparison with conditions three years ago. Nineteen hundred and twenty-two began with five and a half million men out of work, with the steel industry inactive, with the building trades idle, and agriculture in a disadvantageous economic position. Nineteen twenty-four finds these conditions, with the exception of agriculture, a matter of history. Conditions are not all that men wish, but certainly are moving in the right direction .

"The weakest spot in the whole business situation is with agriculture. Here, too, there has been improvement, and there is more improvement in sight, but the purchasing power of agriculture, relative to industry, lags behind. On this point there is a good deal of difference of opinion; but few informed authorities, however, contend that agriculture is back to balance in earning and purchasing power with other lines of business.

"For the moment there is recession in business activity. This need surprise no one. Economic history shows that the journey out of depression back to prosperity has always been marked by 'ups' and 'downs.' There is the movement forward, to be followed by hesitation. On the whole, advancement is made toward more stability. Time is required for complete readjustment.

"What the World War did to world business must not be lost sight of. Loss of workers, destruction of markets, debts, taxes, disrupted exchange conditions as between nations—all concern American business. This is especially true with agriculture which must depend, in part at least, on foreign markets and foreign purchasing power and purchasing willingness, to find an outlet for surplus production. And as agriculture is directly influenced by loss and gain of markets, so all business, little and big, is influenced by these same marketing conditions."

Miss Marx Leaves After 3 Years Here

Miss Wilhemine Marx, Middlesboro's efficient public health nurse for the past three and a half years, left yesterday for Cleveland, Ohio, having concluded her work here and put it in shape for a successor. She said she had not yet made plans for future work but will take a much needed rest of several weeks.

Miss Marx, because of her remarkable work here, has won much praise from the people of Middlesboro and from state and national sources where her work has been observed. She will be greatly missed in Middlesboro.
